

American Polyphony 2013

In music, polyphony is the simultaneous presentation of two or more voices bound together and yet independent . . . none louder or more influential than the other to create a single composition.

Examine the voices of the 1960's and draw a conclusion as to why one could use polyphony as an analogy for the evolution of American society.

Present a polyphonic composition using digital media to members of the community on Thursday, January 31st.

Pick a voice from this era. Write an essay in this voice about how historical events shaped the future.

Read selected literature and music from the Sixties.
